EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE Owego Times, Senator Platt's home newspaper, and a most fervent advocate of that gentleman's election last winter, now declares unequivocally in favor of Robertson's prompt confirmation. The signs of the Times are significant—both at Owego and Oswego.

IT is absurd for the Democrats to suppose that they are making any capital by the Senate dead-lock. The popular disgust is directed toward them full as much as it is to the Repuclicans. Neither party is making anything by the bungle both have worked themselves into. If the Republican position were as bad again as it is now it would not be sufficient provocation for the Republican to leave his party and go over to the Democrats.

VIRGINIA has many things peculiar to herself, but in nothing is she more peculiar than the dialect which her Bourbon families use. Senator Johnston's desk in the Senate was concealed the other day by a large shield of flowers which bore this inscription: "Virginians to Virginia's true son; may he continue to shield our honor and traditions from all assaults of her enemies, foreign or domestic." Senator Mahone has been called a good many hard names, but this is the first time he has been dubbed a "domestic enemy" of Virginia.

THE Democratic and Deputy Democratic papers don't like the action of the Republicans at Harrisburg in standing by the Republicans at Washington. The spectacle of a united Republican party doesn't please them. But that was one of the strong points of the proceeding. The Republicans differed when there was occasion to differ on the choice of Senator; but they are united in Republicanism and in warfare on the common foe. It was a good thing, after the divisions of the winter, for the Republicans of Pennsylvania to show their unity and harmony on the main issue.

THE Bey of Tunis declines to accede to any suggestions or commands from exterior sources, and having the specific promise of Italian aid and the implied protection of his nominal master, the Sublime Porte proposes to give France considerable trouble in carrying out the contract she has undertaken. France may acquire Tunis, but then on the other hand she may not, and in the latter case may happen to come out of the struggle minus Savoy and Nice; for Italy would certainly not hesitate to strive for the recovery of those fair domains if once she gets her Gallic adversary at a disadvantage. This is not likely to be an affair of out-posts only when fighting actually commences.

THAT was a beautiful dramatic effect in the Senate, says the Tribune of 17th, when Mr. Pendleton pointed to the Clerk's desk and said the Democrats "would not promote in desecrating that altar, consecrated to the discharge of great public duties, dedicated to the service of all parties, but for the partisan use of none, and permit it to be made the instrument of political warfare and the spoil of petty partisan triumphs." No one would suppose that two years ago when the Democrats came into power that "altar" had been covered with a wriggling mass of Confederate soldiers scrambling for the places. It will hardly do to describe gravely the desk of any Democratic legislative Clerk as an "altar," unless the presence of the Democratic clerk in the capacity of fatted calf makes it one. But the desk of a Democratic Clerk in the Democratic Congress.—Even Mr. Sim Tappertit wouldn't have had the face to call that an altar.

The Real Issue.

Unquestionably a good many Republicans have been disposed to regard the dead-lock in the Senate as a contest over a few offices, but as the debate proceeds they are having their minds disabused on this point, and that, too, by the declarations of leading Democrats. When Senator CAMERON declared that it was the duty of Republicans to welcome the services of such men as General MAHONE because he had "rendered political slavery impossible in Virginia," by cutting loose from the Bourbon party, and demanding free elections and an honest count, his position was at once assailed by Senator BAYARD, who denounced as revolutionary and a dangerous step towards centralization the suggestion that the majority of the Senate should use its influence to strengthen the MAHONE party at the coming fall elections. He held that it was worse than revolution—it was invasion, and a clear attempt to interfere with free elections in a State. This shows plainly enough that the contest, from a Democratic standpoint, has a higher significance than the appointment of two or three officers of the Senate, who in a few months at most, must surrender their places.

As we have said, the triumph of MAHONE means the disintegration of the Solid South, and the consequent downfall of the most formidable wing of the Democratic party. This point the Bourbons are beginning not only to see, but to acknowledge and fight against. It means political ruin to them, and they must do their utmost to avert it. If RIDDLEBERGER'S confirmation will help MAHONE in the least degree, that confirmation must be defeated at all hazards. When MAHONE paves the way for a fair vote and an honest count in Virginia, the great lights of Democracy cry out that any encouragement which a Republican Senate gives to such a movement is worse than revolution—it is a virtual invasion of the sacred soil of the Old Dominion which will not be tolerated. A prominent Southern Senator, in a recent conversation with the Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune, said:

"We would not continue this struggle twenty-four hours, if nothing were involved except the possession of a few offices. If the Mahone movement in Virginia succeeds we may as well make up our minds to surrender the control of half a dozen of the other Southern States. Mahone's success will make political rebellion and treason respectable in the South and Mahones will spring up in North Carolina, and South Carolina, in Georgia, in Alabama, and even in Mississippi. The very existence of the Democratic party in some States is at stake in this contest. Disaffected Democrats in every Southern State are watching the struggle with eager interest, and they will rise in rebellion against party discipline the moment they see the Democratic party overthrown in Virginia."

This statement tallies exactly with the progress of events in more than one of the Southern States. It reveals the true situation, and accounts for the tenacity with which the Bourbons cling to the pretense that they are fighting against repudiation and a corrupt bargain. They are fighting for white supremacy in the South—for the privilege to suppress Republican majorities by the use of the tissue ballot and the short-gun, and to maintain seats in both the Senate and the House which they have obtained through fraud, perjury and violence.

The Pittsburg Post has come to confess that this is after all the real issue. It says:

"Senator Conkling is reported as having said last week if they could not give Mahone his price, the Republicans should relinquish the committees his vote gave them. The Democrats are not asking that, but are determined the bargains shall not be consummated to Mahone's advantage at this time, so as to increase his power in the coming campaign in Virginia.

To "increase his [MAHONE'S] power in the coming campaign in Virginia" means to break the power of the Bourbon party in that State. Nay, it means even more than that. It means as the Southern Senator above quoted declares, the virtual surrender of the control of half a dozen of the other Southern States. It is not surprising, therefore, that the Democrats should resist with all their power any efforts which the Republicans may make to help MAHONE "in the coming campaign in Virginia." Commercial.

The Secretary's Plans.

The plans of Secretary Windom for meeting and taking care of the maturing five and six per cents. are announced authoritatively, and will be found outlined in our Washington dispatches. The plans as outlined do not greatly differ from what has been predicted of the Treasury resources heretofore. In fact, they do not differ in essential respects. It is stated that notice will be given to holders of bonds maturing July 1 that the bonds will be redeemed at the Treasury on and after that day interest having ceased at maturity, but holders will have the option of having the bonds continued during the pleasure of the government with interest at three and a-half per cent. payable by check, the same as registered bonds. Holders who prefer cash will receive it, and the bonds so redeemed will be cancelled.

To provide funds to redeem bonds whose owners decline to continue them under this offer, it is believed that the unused four per cent. will be put upon the market and sold to the highest bidders, and whatever balance may remain, together with the available funds in the Treasury, will be applied to the redemption of the five per cents. The object of offering to pay interest in advance, with rebate, must probably be to induce a certain proportion of the bondholders to extend the loan for a time. The interest, of course, is to be calculated at six per cent., which the rebate will reduce to an actual interest charge of three and a-half per cent. But as that is to be in the nature of interest in advance, it is clearly intended to serve as an inducement to extend the loan, as three per cent. in advance would be at least equivalent to four per cent. payable quarterly. The two propositions are about the same length and breadth, and save that the exchange of bonds is deferred in the one case, there does not seem much to choose between them.

It is altogether probable that there will be available at the time the six per cents. mature a surplus of, say, one hundred and fifty millions of funds which may be had at a low rate on call. The government would be able to enter the market as a preferred borrower, and probably it could borrow as much as it might need at three and one-half per cent. for six months. Even in prosperous times there is always a certain volume of money awaiting investment which the owners do not at the time need in the prosecution of their enterprise. Six months may seem a long time to wait a satisfactory investment. But it must be remembered that government securities always command cash, and when a lender wants to realize in less than six months he can easily do so. By the time he needs his money, some other person has a surplus, which can be had by anybody who needs ready money and has good cash securities to sell. Under some circumstances the Secretary can resort to temporary loans, but whether he can do so in the present instance or not is a question for the Solicitor of the Treasury or perhaps the Attorney General, to answer.—North American.

A short time ago when the debate in the Senate was at fever heat, words more forcible than polite were exchanged between Senators Mahone and Hill, and at one time it seemed as though the old method of settling personal quarrels in the South would be resorted to, to settle their difficulty; however, cooler counsels prevailed and upon the adjournment of the Senate it was thought that nothing woul done outside.

MR. GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS takes the nincompoop members of his civil service reform association gently by the ear, as it were, and tries to persuade them into something like a sensible view of Robertson's appointment. He says in Haper's Weekly that they would have preferred a strenuous friend of reform for Collector, "but in the actual situation, as their chief foe and immediate obstuction is the existing machine, and as the Robertson nomination is a blow at that, they are naturally its wellwishers. The nomination is not in itself a measure of reform, but it is evident from the universal gnashing of stalwart teeth that it is most distasteful to the enemies of reform. The metaphysical reformers, therefore, will not probably be very zealous in aiding the machine to defeat the nomination." It is charitable on the part of Mr. Curtis to endeavor to credit the nincompoops with so sensible a line of policy as this, but as a matter of fact the nincompoop attitude is not at all what he tries to make it. They are doing all they can to aid the machine to defeat Robertson, but their all is so feeble that it does not count either one way or the other.

IT is quite natural that there should be some objections to the plan adopted by Secretary Windon in providing for the maturing government bonds. A good deal of chagrin is manifested by those who loudly asserted that he had no power to take the step he has taken, in finding that the law offices of government advise the Secretary that he has. Now the opponents of the plan assert that it will not succeed that the bond holders will prefer the redemption of their bonds rather than have the interest scale to 3½ per cent. The returns already received at the Treasury department from some of the leading banks and bankers of the country, indicate that the method adopted by the Secretary is meeting with unexpected success, and it is doubtful if he will be called upon to see any of the 104 millions to meet the requirment of those who demand the redemption of this bonds

MASSACHUSETTS people, without distinction of party, will cordially approve the appointment of General Devans to the place on the Supreme Bench of that State which he resigned to go into President Hayes' Cabinet. He made an excellent reputation as a judge prior to 1877, and many of his friends thought it a mistake for him to forsake a career so congenial to his tastes and talents for the short-lived honors of a Cabinet position. His management of the Attorney-General's office was characterized by industry, discretion and concientiousness. If not a prominent member of the Administration, he was a valuable one. At one time it was thought he would be appointed to the Supreme Court at Washington, but the prospective vacancy in the New England representation in that tribunal did not occur as was expected during Mr. Hayes' term.

THE law recently enacted by the Tennesse Legislature, providing for the promt dismissal from office of any sheriff who allows a prisoner to be taken from his custody and lynched, is a very transparent bid for a little popularity. It is hardly to be supposed that an officer of the law will willingly assist in such a flagrant act of deliberate murder; and if he should, there are already laws provided for his punishment, and he could as easily be proven to have been an accessory to the crime as to have allowed a prisoner to have been taken from him. They had better make another attempt and try to get at those guilty of the crime, rather than saddle all the responsibility on an innocent officer.

GENERAL WM. MAHONE was elected to the United States Senate by Republican votes, therefore it is untruthful and indecent to speak of him as having been unfaithful to those who elected him; he was not elected as a Democrat or by Democratic votes alone, and would have been false to the confidence placed in him by the Republicans of the Virginia Legislature if he had gone to the Senate to obey the dictates of a Democratic caucus, or to help the Democrats defeat the Republicans on partizan questions. Yet to-day the Democrats are particularly anxious to make it appear that a bargain must have been made as his reason for voting against the Bourbons.

Editors and Reporters.

A few days ago I promised to tell you something more about reporters. You have learned already what easy times they have; but often those who have the best chances in the world do not seem to appreciate this fact, and sometimes a reporter gets this way and thinks his salary ought to be raised. So he speaks to the editor about it. Editors are very liberal men. Many of them do not think any more of a dollar than some men think of their lives, but they know that if the repoter were paid too much they would save their money and buy the paper, and then the editors would be like the Chinese—they would have to go. So, in self-protection, they keep the salaries of the reporters at $5,000 or $6,000 a year. They hate to do this, but self-preservation is the first law of editors as well as of nature. Many editors preserve themselve so well that the reporters never buy them out.

But editors are kind-hearted. Mr. Dana, of the New York Sun, once heard that a horse which had been very fast, but which every-body thought played out, was going to be sold at auction by his master. So he sent around and bought the poor horse for $4,000. The next summer he put him in a big race, "just for fun," everybody said. There were a great many noted horses in this race, and men bet large sums of money on them Mr. Dana's horse only bringing $1 in $50 pools. But he won the race and all the money that was bet. This is called "paralyzing the pool box." So you see the fairies are kind to those who do good.

Some good stories are told about reporters. Once a young man who had graduated at Harvard College, and was a splendid scholar in baseball and rowing, came to a large Western city and hired out to be a reporter. The next day the editor sent him to an inquest. He came back to the office at night with enough manuscript to make a book.

The editor gave this to an experienced reporter and said: "Cut that down to a stickful." After a while he went over to where the experienced reporter was sitting and said: "How did that new duck get along with the inquest?" "Oh," said the experienced reporter "he got everything except the verdict." And then the other reporters that were sitting around laughed heartily, but the editor only let drop a few words of tropical warmth and discharged the new reporter—who was very much surprised to see that the paper continued to come out regularly after he had left it to its fate.

New reporters always tell everybody that they are "journalists" but the old ones call them deckhands. New reporters always think they know everything, and in some offices it is customary to put a dish of salt on a new reporter's desk. The salt is sometimes sent through the mails. This is a delicate way of telling him he is too fresh. Reporters never like to hurt anybody's feelings. Once an editor in Cincinnati hired a reporter in Chicago to do some work for his paper. After awhile the reporter forgot to send anything about an important matter, which made the editor very angry. So he sent a dispatch to the reporter saying: "You are discharged. Why did you get left on that murder? Answer." When the reporter read this he laughed to himself and said: I wonder if that old plum thinks he can get the best of me. So he wrote all about the matter, and closed by saying he had been discharged because he disliked to be connected with a paper that allowed itself to get scooped. It took 1850 words to say this, and, as it was sent by telegraph, the Cincinnati editor had a pretty big bill to pay. But it taught him never to ask for explanations by telegraph again, and that Chicago reporters were pretty liable to keep up with the procession.

HUNTING FOR A PLACE.—A good many people spend all their life hunting for the place in this world which they were intended to fill. They never settle down to anything with any sort of restful or contented feeling. What they are doing now is not by any means the work that is suited to their abilities. They have a sunny ideal of a very noble life which they should like to reach in which their powers would find free scope, and where they could make a very bright record. But in their present position they cannot do much of anything; and there is little use to try; their life is a humdrum and prosy routine, and they can accomplish nothing really worthy and beautiful. So they go on discontented with their own lot and sighing for another; and while they sigh the years glide away, and soon come to an end, and they find they have missed every opportunity of doing anything worthy of an immortal being in the passage to eternity. The truth is, one's vocation is never some far off possibility. It is always the simple round of duties that the passing hour brings, no day is commonplace if we had only eyes to see its splendor. There is no duty that comes to our hand but brings to us to possibility of kingly service.

State News.

The Field's Fishing Club of Williamsport, deposited 25,000 young trout in Gray's run this week. Fishing will not be allowed in the creek for two years.

Abram Johnson, a survivor of the war of 1812, died in Wayne county a few days since, at the age of 108 years. He commanded a company of Oneida Indians during the war and married a daughter of one of the chiefs.

One of the prominent citizens of Schuylkil Haven was arrested in that place on Saturday while in the act of stealing feed from the stables of the Schuylkil Navigation Company. A large quantity of feed was found at his house; he was committed for trial.

An extensive distribution of scenery and dramatic effects was caused in Lancaster early on Tuesday morning by the upsetting of the baggage wagons while on their way to the depot. Several men were injured and portions of the scenery badly damaged.

Another remarkable case of insurance swindling has recently been discovered in Schuylkill county. In this case, a man who had been on the verge of the grave with consumption for the past two years, was insured on the morning of his death for $7000 in seven policies for $1000 each.

Street Commissioner Hunter, of Pittsburg, has tested the practicability of cleaning the streets by means of hose attached to the fire plugs. The plan has been successful, and the prospects are that the old style of scrapers and carts will be entirely superseded by the new method.

Rev. Dr. Coleman has placed $1000 in the hands of the Trustees of the Lafayette College as an endowment prize in Biblical studies. This is the first endowment of the kind in the history of the college. President Cattell will sail for Europe on Saturday for a summer's vacation.

Daniel Wetzell, an employe in the Harrisburg Steel Works, was burned on Thursday in a very serious manner. While pouring water on the sand in the mill, he inadvertently threw a portion into a vessel containing molten steel, causing an explosion and scattering the metal over his body. His injuries although severe, are not considered dangerous by his physicians.

A wedding which was arranged to take place in West Chester on Thursday last was postponed until the following day on account of the non-arrival of the bridegroom, who resided in Pottstown. He had read the wrong column in the time-table, and his only recourse was to telegraph the sad news to the expectant fair one and ask the meeting to adjourn over until the next day.

A colored man employed in the McCormick Iron Works, Harrisburg, was badly injured in the mill on Thursday. While turning the wheel of a derrick his hand slipped from the handle, when it flew around with terrific force, striking him squarely in the face. His nose and cheek were fearfully mashed by the blow. He was removed to the City Hospital, where his wounds were dressed.

While James Coons was driving along the turnpike near Mine Hill Gap on Thursday a black snake, which was lying in the road, attacked his horse, biting him in the leg and at the same time winding itself around the limb. The horse was stricken with terror and dashed off at the height of his speed. After running a considerable distance he ran into a brush fence, where he became fast. A search for the cause of the horse's fright brought his snakeship to light, still tightly coiled around the leg of the maddened animal. It was killed and found to measure four and one half feet in length.

Poetry.

A Song of the Camp.

BY BAYARD TAYLOR.

"Give us a song!" the soldiers cried,
The outer trenches guarding,
When the heated guns of the camp allied
Grew weary of bombarding.

The dark Sedan in silent scoff
Lay dim and threatening under;
And the tawny mound of the Malakoff
No longer belched its thunder.

There was a pause. A guardsman said:
"We storm the forts to-morrow;
Sing while we may, another day
Will bring enough of sorrow."

Then lay along the battery's side,
Below the smoking cannon,
Brave hearts from Severn and from Clyde,
And from the banks of Shannon.

They sang of love, and not of fame;
Forgot was Briton's glory;
Each heart recalled a different name,
But all sang, "Annie Laurie."

Voice after voice caught up the song
Until its tender passion
Rose like an anthem, rich and strong—
Their battle eve confession.

Dear girl, her name he dared not speak,
But, as the song grew louder,
Something upon the soldier's cheek
Washed off the stains of powder.

Beyond the darkening ocean burned
The bloody sunset's embers,
While the Crimean valleys learned
How English love remembers.

And once again a fire of hell
Rained on the Russian quarters,
With stream of shot and burst of shell,
And bellowing of the mortars!

And Irish Nora's eyes are dim
For a singer dumb and gory;
And English Mary mourns for him
Who sang of "Annie Laurie."

Sleep, soldiers! still in honored rest
Your truth and valor wearing;
The bravest are the tenderest—
The loving are the daring.

Our Story Teller.

The Talisman.

A pout upon the red lips of Gerald Sinclair's young wife—unmistakably a pout—for though a wife of almost two years, the fond, indulgent husband had for the first time said nay to an openly expressed wish.

The fancy ball of the season, a grand and fashionable assemblage was to take place, during his absence, and he had said that he should prefer she did not attend.

She was only twenty. Let this much be said in extenuation of the two great tears that rose to the brown eyes and slowly trickled down the pretty face, splashing on the dainty morning dress, which clinging to the dainty form, revealed so perfectly its graceful outlines.

Certainly, Niobe had no reason to feel ashamed of this one of her children. But Gerald Sinclair had only stooped to kiss away the glistening drops, in a half hurried manner, perhaps to hide his awakening remorse.

"Never mind, little wife, I'll make it up to you another time."

Then he was gone; but she sat still turning and turning her wedding ring, with eyes bent upon it. It was a curious ring—a solid band set with five large diamonds.

It had been her charm, her talisman, not to be taken from he finger until soul and body had parted, but this morning it had lost its charm. If it failed to scatter the clouds it failed to bring back the sunshine.

Even when the hour came around for Gerald's home coming he missed his usual warm welcome; but he thought that he might trust his wife's heart, and said nothing. The next day he started on his journey.

"You're not going, my dear?" exclaimed Mrs. Martin, bursting in upon her friend on the morning of the ball. "And why not?"

"Gerald is away," replied Mrs. Sinclair, with some little show of wifely dignity, as though the fact were in itself sufficient explanation.

"And why need that make any difference?" pursued Mrs. Martin, a bewitching little widow some few years her friend's senior. I will share my escort with you—Count Belonzi!"

Sophie Sinclair looked amazed. She knew that the man mentioned had but lately gained entree into society, and knew, also, that her husband disliked and distrusted him. Once or twice she had seen his eyes fixed admiringly upon herself and had felt somewhat as the bird might feel beneath the basilisk glare of the serpent.

"Well, why don't you answer?" continued Mrs. Martin. "Will you go?"

"No, no," she replied, trying to speak with firm decision. "Beside I do not think that Gerald admires the Count."

"Prejudice. The Count is one of the most charming and agreeable men I know. Indeed, I think I should be canonized for my willingness to share his attentions, especially as I have heard him say all manner of pretty things about you."

"Nonsense, Ellen," retorted Mrs. Sinclair.

But she felt the ground slipping beneath her feet as she spoke.

After all, Gerald had not said positively no! Had he thought it necessary, after he had openly expressed his disapprobation of her going?

He had not known that she would be sorely tempted. Besides she would wear a mask. No one would know her and when she told Gerald he would forgive her. A sudden thought came to her.

"I will go," she said at last, after continued urging, and looking at the picture in all its brightest lights "on one condition, and that is, no one is to know me—not even the Count. Say that you have persuaded a friend to accompany you who wishes to remain unknown. I will come to your house, where he will find me, and thus gain no clue."

So it was decided; but spite of her exquisite costume as a fairy, as she concealed it and herself beneath a large domino, as the clock of her mantle chimed ten, it seemed to Sophie every stroke to say "Stay! stay!"

She was almost tempted to obey it, but she had promised Ellen, and after all, she had heard that it was well for young wives to assert themselves.

An hour later, and, on Count Belzoni's arm she entered upon the brilliant scene. So far, he had not even seemed curious to ascertain her identity. She experienced at this a singular sense of relief.

The ball was a its heighth when the clock rang out the hour of midnight; but, for the first time in her life, light and gayety were distasteful. A hundred times she wished herself at home.

"I will tell Gerald. I have already been punished," she whispered to herself, as she stood for a moment alone in a quiet corner.

"You look more like a nun than a fairy—rather like one who had foresworn the vanities of the world than a siren to tempt men to their destruction," said a voice close to her, "though to the latter I know no one more fitted."

"Sir!" she exclaimed, indignantly recognizing as she spoke, the Count standing at her elbow.

"Ah, you thought I did not know you. I should penetrate any disguise you wore. Besides you have forgotten a badge of recognition."

She followed with her eyes his downward glance, and saw that it rested on her hand, ungloved, as in the better accord with the exigencies of her costume.

Involuntarily she drew it away with the ring which had betrayed her.

Denial was useless.

"Since you know me, then," she said, "we will no further play a part. To others we are masks; to ourselves we are our ourselves."

"Ah, madam," he whispered, let us rather say to the world we are ourselves. To each other we are a mask. Can men, think you, look coldly on such a beauty as you possess. Can—"

"Call a carriage for me," she directed.

Ten minutes later she was within her own house. Her first impulse was to tear off the hated costume which had caused her such trouble; the next to throw herself on the bed and sob out her excitement and contrition. The morning sun, streaming in her room, awoke her.

With a shudder she remembered the past night. She looked down at her hand—the hand that had been polluted by another's touch—as though in some way she expected to find the contamination branded on the soft, white surface. It was all unmarried—but she looked again—she looked away back—she rubbed her eyes and looked—the color meanwhile fluttering out of her cheeks and her pale lips quivering, as if her heart seemed to stand still in a sudden agony of fear, for from the third finger was missing the talismanic ring.

When and where had she lost it, and how could she now find courage to confess all to Gerald? She rose and dressed revolving and revolving this problem in her mind.

At any hour her husband might return. For the first time she dreaded to meet him—dreaded to look into the kindly, handsome eyes, and read there all the incredulous reproach, mingled perhaps, with scorn and anger.

The days wore on. Her friend, Mrs. Marian, ran in to scold her for her desertion; but her pale face and trembling tones made good her plea for sudden illness.

At nightfall Gerald arrived. She threw herself into his arms, in a burst of nervous weeping; but when he wonderingly asked its cause, her courage failed her.

Why was it she had never imagined that he might look stern until today?

A week passed, when one evening sitting in the twilight, a step sounded close beside her. She looked up to discover the Count.

"Pardon!" he began, in answer to her indignant, questioning look; "why must you be so cruel? May I now see you?"

"Sir, I command you to leave me. I am now under the protection of my own roof."

He was about to answer, when a latch key was heard inserted in the outside door.

In an instant he had sprung into some place of concealment, but the fact that he was near lent to the young wife a sudden courage, born of her moment's desperation. Her husband, entering, approached her, but she motioned him back.

"Gerald," she said, "I have a bitter confession to make. It is fitting you should hear it now."

He listened with arms folded across his breast, while she told him all the story of that fated night.

"And this is all?" he questioned, bitterly, when she had paused.

"No, not at all," she continued, raising her voice.

"My confession has another witness, who has forced his hated presence again upon me. The Count Belonzi is here again, Gerald."

As she spoke she drew aside the curtain; but the form she expected to disclose was gone, the window attesting to its flight.

Silently the husband drew a paper from his pocket and showed her a paragraph offering a reward for the arrest of a thief and swindler known as Count Belonzi.

"My darling," he said, my little wife has learned a good lesson she will never forget. I have known this story all the time, but have waited till you came to tel it to me. I returned the night of the ball to take you with me, when I found you had gone. Imagine what I suffered and my added suffering when arriving at the scene of enjoym nt, where I followed you, I discovered who was your companion. I stood near you and heard the words he addressed to you, heard with joyful heart your answer; saw you wrench your hand from his hold, and also saw what you did not, the sparkle of the ring he drew from your finger. Poor little girl! I watched you hasten through the crowd, and knew that you had already met your severest punishment. It has been through my efforts that the Count has been traced and exposed. Only this morning I recovered your ring from the man with whom he pledged it as a security. Once more I place it on your finger. But remember, darling it is only the outward charm. A wife's true talisman is her husband's honor, which no thief may steal, unless he adds assassination to his crime and buys it with her heart's blood."

Joe Winrow's Two Blows.

A well known citizen, remarkable for his unostentatious benevolence and piety, hearing of Joe Winrow's death, said: "I'm sorry to hear it."

"Did you ever take any lessons from him?" the sculler asked.

The pious gentleman opened his eyes wide. "Good gracious, no!" said he. "I never put on a boxing-gloves in my life, and I trust never will be induced to raise my hand in anger against any one. They say Winrow was a great fighter."

"You bet.' was the reply.

"Do you know," said the pious gentleman, "that I was acquainted with Winrow for several years before I could bring myself to believe he was a fighter. He was a neighbor of mine for a long time. When he moved in, some one told me he was a prize fighter, and I expected every day to see him engage in a quarrel. To my surprise, I never saw him have a misunderstanding with any one. He was always sober and pleasant, and I noticed he used to stop and chat with the little children. Everybody spoke kindly to him, and I began to think there must be some terrible mistake about the reputation he had of being a desperate fighter. I doubted whether he could fight at all, he was so quiet; but one day down on Washington Street I saw him save a little child from the wheels of a milk wagon. The driver a great burly fellow, took no trouble to avoid the little one, and the child would certainly have been killed had not Winrow rushed in and seized her. The driver only jeered and would have gone on but Joe shouted out to him that he ought to be arrested. The fellow stopped at once and commenced to use fearful language.

"'I've a good mind,' said he, "to get down and give you a licking.'

"'You'd better try it,' said Winrow who was holding the little girl by the hand. 'If you step down I'll break your jaw, you big ruffian.'

"The driver jumped down at once and made a rush for Joe, and I really trembled for him, for his assailant was a ferocious-looking fellow, and a great deal heavier and stronger. The old man did not seem to be a bit scared, though. He just lifted the little child away a few feet and then turned and threw out his right hand at the driver, and the fellow went down like a log. I was astonished beyond measure, for the old man did not seem to make any extraordinary exertion. The driver got up at once and made another rush at Joe, and the old man threw out his left hand, and down went the belligerent party again as if he had been shot. I was more surprised than ever, for the second blow seemed to stun the fellow, and he lay for some time on his back in the mud. Then he turned over and crawled on his hands and knees to the wagon, and climbed up in a dazed sort of way to his seat and drove off. I noticed that his face was covered with blood. When 'twas all over I took the old man by the hand, and the first thing I knew I was complimenting him, though I never thought I should be found praising a man for striking a another down on the street. The old fellow only laughed though.

"'Oh, that's nothing,' said he. 'Why the duffer couldn't whip a ten-year-old boy. I don't believe he knew how to hit me if I stood and let him.'"—San Francisco Chronicle.

If R. B. Hayes is't a great man he has one consolation. There will be fewer bums bearing his name, and getting locked up for being disorderly, than there are George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Francis Marion.

Local Small Talk.

—Salt down your dimes, boys; de circus am a comin'.

—Dr. James McIntyre, late of Centre Hall, has located in Lock Haven.

—Mr. J. N. Vanormer, of Humes' Mill, in Spring township, will become a resident of Bellefonte.

—The Local News, of Huntingdon, says skating is reported good over that way—roller skating, probably.

—Ex-Gov. Curtin will deliver the oration at Monnongahela City on Decoration Day, so it is reported.

—A new store, to be operated in the interest of the Grangers, was opened at Milesburg on Wednesday last.

—Messrs. Twitmire & Gephart, of Zion, have contracted with a Lock Haven firm for a steam engine and boiler.

—Mr. John T. Fowler, our enterprising friend from up the valley, was in town Thursday. M. F. is boiling over with business.

—April term of court begins on the 25th. It promises to be a lively week, from the fact that the Circus Royal exhibits here on the 27th.

—The west side of Williams & Bro.'s paint shop, on High street, has been decorated with a hardware advertisement on the circus plan.

—The alleged spring is half over, according to the almanac. It is to be hoped it will not climb up into summer's lap and loiter there awhile.

—Mr. T. R. Toole, the gentlemanly advertising agent of the Circus Royal, arrived in town Thursday in his car. Of course he didn't forget to call on his editorial friends.

—A. R. Agnew, the tobacconist, has moved into the building recently vacated by J. D. Sourbeck, a few doors below his old stand. His new quarters are much more roomy and convenient.

—It is said that the March earnings of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company show a net increase of $400,000 over the same month last year. The receipts for the same month in 1880 were considered large.

—The advertising car of the Circus Royal arrived in town Thursday with the bill-posting brigade, which immediately proceeded to decorate the fences and bill boards hereabouts, to the immense satisfaction of young America.

—Mr. Jesse Gillespie, said to have been one of the oldest inhabitants of Bellefonte, died on the 10th inst. at his residence near the Friends' meeting house. His age is reported to be 78 years, but we were unable to ascertain the exact figures.

—The new railroad trestle over Spring creek, leading to Morris' lime kiln works, is completed and open to the passage of cars. The new bridge is quite an attractive looking structure, and of sufficient strength to allow locomotives to run over it.

—The recent rains have created a good rafting flood in all the logging streams in this part of the State. The West Branch at Lock Haven was very much swollen Wednesday morning, and fears were entertained for the safety of the boom at that place.

—A much talked of event in society circles is the approaching silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Orvis, which will be celebrated on Friday evening of this week, the 22d inst. The number of invitations issued runs up in the hundreds.

—Forepaugh's "greatest show on earth" will visit Tyrone on the 26th. A special train will be run from Bellefonte to Tyrone on that night, but as the Circus Royal exhibits here the day after, it will probably not require many cars for the transportation of passengers from this point.

—Max Shamberg, Austro-Hungarian Consul at Pittsburgh, offers a reward of fifty dollars for information as to the whereabouts of Anton Becht, of Vienna, who came to America in 1847 and was last heard of in 1852, when he was working on a farm in Fulton county. Becht, if now living, is 64 years of age.

—Mr. Proctor, agent for the American Cyclopædia, has begun to deliver his sales in this place, and the large number of copies he has disposed of speaks well for the intelligence and learning of our citizens. Mr. Proctor informs us that he finds more excellent libraries, and more appreciative and scholarly people in Bellefonte than in any other town he ever visited of the same size.

—On last Sunday night a gang of boys, who, judging from their actions, are candidates for the Penitentiary, exercised their physical powers by moving a freight car down the siding, below the depot, and leaving it in such a position that the sides of the car extended partway over the main track. Had it not been discovered by a citizen in passing down the track it is quite likely an accident would have occurred on the arrival of the express west in the morning.

—Centre county, according to the new apportionment bill just reported to the House, will be known as the 50th judicial district, and will be composed of the counties of Centre and Mifflin. Judge Orvis will be president judge. Judge Mayer will preside over the 25th judicial district, consisting of the counties of Potter, Cameron, Elk and Clinton, unless he should move to Clearfield, which has been made a separate district (the 46th) where he would remain at the head of the court Judge Bucher, who formerly presided over the courts of Mifflin, is now in the 20th district, including the counties of Union, Snyder and Juniata. The new apportionment bill fixes the number of judicial districts in the State at fifty-one.

—A cheapside girl, who tamed a mouse and kept it about the house as a pet, was unfortunate enough to lose it in a very peculiar manner the other day, and which has been a source of sorrow to her ever since. It seems that the old cat, Tom, cherished feelings of hatred towards this strange sharer of his morning milk, and at an unsuspecting moment when the mouse was lying in its wonted nest, its tail protruding through the hole and resting gently on the Brussels carpet without, Thomas, with a heart overflowing with envy, seized that elongated portion of its anatomy in his teeth and gave a jerk, breaking every bone in the mouse's body. The young lady's grief is unbounded. Moral: never place your affections on long-tailed pets.

—The counterfeiters are at it again—bound to break us printers up. A dangerous counterfeit on the United States standard silver dollar has made its appearance. It is almost a matter of impossibility to detect the bogus dollars by careful examination, as they have the ring of the genuine metal, the milling is perfect, and there is an absence of that greasy substance which is found by running the thumb over the general run of the base coins. The coin, however, is too light, and can be detected by the use of a good balance. They are also slightly thicker than the genuine.

—A meeting of the stockholders of the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad Company was held in the city of Philadelphia on Wednesday, April 6th, for the purpose of ratifying the articles of agreement merging the Bellefonte and Snow Shoe railroad and the Moshannon railroad into the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad Company. Nine-tenths of the stock of the company was voted in favor of the merger, being all the stock represented at the meeting. This increases the mileage of the Bald Eagle road to about 75 miles.

—The recent rain storm and warm weather brought several species of wild fowl to the waters in this vicinity. Duck hunters were numerous at the mill dam, but only a few birds were bagged. Several loons were shot, one weighing 16 pounds. He was aged and wary, and baffled the sportsmen for about half a day, but was finally captured by Charles Heisler, after three or four pounds of shot, more or less, had been blazed at him.

—A Bishop street man took his rifle down from a shelf the other night to oil the lock. While he was engaged in the work his wife and little daughter came in and stood directly before the muzzle. Not noticing their presence he raised the hammer, and—then went down cellar and took it off with a screw driver. Nobody hurt.

—A little West ward boy, after three hours of patient fishing yesterday afternoon from the race, was rewarded by hauling out a full-grown boot. Although this article is not considered a delicacy at this season of the year, the youngster looked immensely tickled, and walked proudly off with his capture.

—The spring bonnet is struggling to be let loose. An up town young lady, who purchased her's two weeks ago, is becoming exasperated at the backward state of the weather, and says she intends to wear it to church next Sunday if it snows three feet a minute. That's the kind of spunk we like to hear of.

—Circuses have taken the road considerably earlier than usual this season. The Royal circus exhibits here on the 27th, which is the first time in the memory of our oldest citizens that the people of Bellefonte have had the opportunity of attending a circus in the month of April.

—It is hard to tell who is ahead in the race for the County Superintendency. As strange as it may seem no new candidate has come to the front since Saturday.

—Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and other points in that vicinity, was visited by a heavy snow storm on Wednesday, which probably accounts for the frigidity of the atmosphere yesterday.

—House cleaners are only awaiting pleasant weather to begin operations in sand and soap suds slinging.

Veteran Locomotives.

A few days since three of the engines first used on the Snow Shoe road, Nos. 1, 3 and 4, were removed from the round house in this place to the Pennsylvania railroad shops in Altoona. A reporter of the Sun has been "interviewing" these old settlers, and gives their history as follows: "There stands in the yard near the middle division round house three odd-looking locomotives, Nos. 1, 3 and 4, which have been brought here from the Bellefonte and Snow Shoe railroad. No. 1 was built in Philadelphia by M. W. Baldwin, in 1859, and was sent by rail to Williamsport. From thence it was taken to Bellefonte on a flat by canal, there being no other outlet at that time—the Bald Eagle Valley railroad having not then an existence. This engine has the "old hook motion," and has evidently seen hard service in climbing the steeps of the Alleghenies traversed by the Bellefonte and Snow Shoe road. No. 1 will probably go to adorn the scrap pile, as it has about outlived its usefulness. Nos. 3 and 4 are in better condition, having been built in 1865, and therefore endured less service. They have the 'link motion,' and will be repaired and used as shifters on some of the branch roads. They are curious-looking machines, contrasted with the large, symmetrical and powerful engines of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, into whose possession the Bellefonte and Snow Shoe road has recently passed. The cylinder heads point skyward, and in case of a blow-out the plate or fragments of them would perform a circuit in the heavens much like a rocket."

Echoes from Martha.

The farmers are moving over their places with an eye to business, but are a little cautious. Their confidence in the weather is not very strong yet. Some are expecting more snow with Easter, but we hope they may be disappointed.

The moving business is still going on quite extensively. We understand Shed Williams is moving to his former place, where he will be prepared to attend to the duties of his office as Justice.

Our good neighbor, J. W. Steward, is improving, and we are glad to see him out again enjoying the warm sun.

J. F. Williams, who shared in the injuries of the explosion at Tyrone, is recovering, and will be able to be about soon.

J. Q. Miles, our candidate for Sheriff, is still buying stock. Saw him leading one a few days ago which he seemed to handle as though he was used to the business. Wish him success.

G. W. Gill, the blacksmith on the corner, is quite busy, and always ready with his tin box to receive the silver of different denominations.

Our mill, controlled by G. W. Woodring, is doing quite a business, running almost night and day. Abe Woodring is the miller, and knows how to make No. 1 flour.

MARTHA.

Wanted—More Wages.

The freight brakemen on the Snow Shoe road are on a strike for an increase of wages. Since the Pennsylvania company assumed control of the road more trains have been run between the mines and Snow Shoe Intersection, made necessary by the increased mining operations. The train men did not object very strongly to performing their additional labors, thinking that their pay would be correspondingly increased. In this, though, they were disappointed, as on pay-day, Tuesday of last week, their checks were drawn for the same amount as they had received under the old management, viz., $1.35 per day, which has created a great deal of dissatisfaction among them. They demand $1.80, the same wages allowed the brakemen on the Tyrone and Clearfield road, and say they will abandon the road if these terms are not acceded to. The freight left on time Wednesday, but several of the trainmen talked as though it would be their last trip under the present arrangement.

—The strike among the brakemen on the Snow Shoe road has not assumed alarming proportions as yet. Considerable growling is heard, but the majority of the men are disposed to await further developments before leaving their positions.

—The Tyrone Herald is "up on its ear" because the Philadelphia Press, in referring to the recent purchase of the Snow Shoe coal lands by Philadelphia parties, stated that the Snow Shoe coal field is as large as the Clearfield region. The Press need not take its statement back, however. There are thousands and thousands of acres of coal land in the Snow Shoe section that the Herald man never heard of.

—It is said that an Erie priest has performed a number of miracles, and the Harrisburg Telegraph thinks it would be advisable to send him to the Legislature.

Miscellaneous.

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiguing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into the manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundels through the following tests:—I placed an eight inch Arundel, and an eight-inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperture in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitised photographic paper, and the white glass discolored the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

* * * "I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

It Cures Spavins, Splints, Curbs, Ringbones, and all similar Blemishes, and Removes the Bunch without Blistering.
For Man it is now known to be one of the best, if not the best, Liniments ever discovered.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

Is the only positive cure known, and to show what this remedy will do, we give here as a sample of cases cured by it a statement which was GIVEN UNDER OATH!

To Whom it may Concern: In 1875 I treated with Kendall's Spavin Cure a bone spavin of several months' growth, nearly half as large as a hen's egg, and completely stopped the lameness and removed the enlargement. I have worked the horse ever since very hard, and he has never been lame, nor could I ever see any difference in the size of the hock joints since I treated them with Kendall's Spavin Cure. R. A. GAINES.
Enosburg Falls, Vt., Feb. 25th, 1879.
Sworn and subscribed to before me this 25th day of Feb., A. D. 1879.
JOHN G. JENNE,
Justice of the Peace.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ON HUMAN FLESH it has been ascertained by repeated trials to be the very best Liniment ever used for any deep-seated pain of long standing, or of short duration. Also for CORNS, BUNIONS, FROST-BITES or any bruise, cut or lameness. Some are afraid to use it on human flesh simply because it is a horse medicine, but you should remember that what is good for BEAST is good for MAN, and we know from experience that KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE can be used on a child one year old with perfect safety. Its effects are wonderful on human flesh and it does not blister or make a sore. Try it and be convinced.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE!

Read below of its wonderful effects as a liniment for the human family:

HEMATITE, Mo., Aug. 28, 1880.
B. J. KENDALL & CO.: GENTS: I am so overjoyed in view of the result of an application of your Kendall's Spavin Cure that I feel that I ought for humanity's sake publish it to the world. About thirty-five years ago, while riding a young ugly horse, I was injured in one of my testicles, and from that time to three weeks ago a slow but constant enlargement has been the result, giving me a great amount of trouble, almost entirely preventing me from horseback riding, which was my usual way of traveling. I saw a notice of your Kendall's Spavin Cure; never once thought of it for anything except for horses, but after receiving the medicine and reading over what it was good for, feeling terribly exercised about my difficulty, for I had consulted many physicians and none gave me any specific but when it could be endured no longer to remove it with the knife. I applied your Kendall's Spavin Cure as an experiment, and it was so painful in its application that I concluded not to repeat it, and thought no more about it until near a week, and lo and behold one-half of the size was gone. With joy I could hardly believe it. I immediately applied it again, and have made in all about one-half dozen applications, running over a space of two weeks, and the terrible enlargement is almost entirely gone, in view of which I cannot express my feelings of delight. It has been a Godsend to me; may He send to others with like troubles.
JOHN RICE,
Pastor of Hematite Congregational Church.
P. S.—You are at liberty to put this in any shape you may please. I am not ashamed to have my name under, over or by the side of it.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE!

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.
Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors.

THE LATEST NEWS.

A Woman Lynched.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 15.—A dispatch from Martin's Depot gives the particulars of the lynching of Judy Metts, a colored woman, on the 9th inst. It states that on Saturday night of the 3d the barn of J. S. Blalock was set on fire and burned. The barn was near the dwelling house, so near that it is supposed the purpose was to burn the dwelling house also. Mr. Blalock made investigations which satisfied him that the incendiary was Judy Metts. On Saturday he went to Justice Harris and swore out a warrant against the woman. The justice placed the warrant in the hands of Constable Gary, who arrested her about eight o'clock at night, and started with her for Clinton. Two miles distant from where they started a party of men on horseback overtook them. Some of the party took charge of the constable while others took the prisoner, and they were carried off in different directions. The woman was found the next morning about two hundred yards from where the lynchers took her, hanging by the neck to a tree about twenty feet from the ground.

Eight Years for Perjury.

NEW YORK, April 15.—James O'Brien alias Robert or "Bob" Lindsay, who during the last campaign deposed that he knew H. L. Morey, the individual to whom it was alleged President Garfield wrote what is known as the "Morey Chinese letter," and who subsequently confessed he perjured himself, this morning pleaded guilty to an indictment for perjury presented against him and Judge Cowing sent him to the State prison for eight years.

In imposing sentence Judge Cowing spoke as follows: "The case is one in which the perjury was of the most dangerous character, and one which affected the result of the national election. In imposing such a heavy sentence for the offence, I do it to serve as a warning to others against going upon the stand in a court of justice and deliberately perjuring themselves, where the act involves such enormous interests." Assistant District Attorney Bell says O'Brien is a worthless fellow, who would swear to anything for five dollars.

Rev. Dr. Carnachan on Trial.

TITUSVILLE, April 15.—The Presbytery of Erie is sitting here in large numbers and the trial of Rev. J. G. Carnachan, D. D., of the Presbyterian church of Meadville, is in progress. His church is divided as to whether they should dissolve his pastoral relation. The feeling runs high. Several distinguished lawyers are on the Judicial Committee. Judge Trunkey, of the Supreme Court, is present.

The Monument to Col. Drake.

TITUSVILLE, April 15.—At the inauguration of the new Oil Exchange measures were taken to erect in this city a monument to Col. Drake, the discoverer of oil. The sum fixed for this purpose by the committee was $15,000. L. H. Smith, Chairman of the committee, telegraphs the Titusville exchange that the Standard Oil Company have subscribed $5,000 toward that sum, provided the whole amount will be raised. Senator Roberts, of this city, is a member of the committee to raise the necessary amount.

Damages for an Assault.

BALTIMORE, April 15.—In the case of Mary A. Murray vs. General E. B. Tyler, Postmaster of this city, for $20,000 damages, for alleged indecent assault on plaintiff while an employe in the postoffice, the jury gave a verdict for plaintiff, assessing the damages at $5,000.

A Double Elopement and Murder.

CINCINNATI, April 16.—A despatch from Memphis says: Five weeks ago two tramps stopped with a family named Davis on St. Francis River, seventy five miles south of Memphis, and a week ago, while the elder and younger Davis was absent, the tramps eloped with their wives, going down the river in a flatboat. The younger Davis started in pursuit on the steamer McCread and overtook the party camping on the bank of the river. Persuading the captain to slow up, he stepped on deck and shot dead the tramp who abducted his wife. Getting off at the next landing he returned and found the dead man deserted. A pardon was found in his pocket showing him to be an Illinois convict named Clark.

A Young Girl's Fate.

WHITEHALL, N. Y., April 16.—Nancy Boyle, 18 years old, has been missing for the past six weeks from her home near Westport and this morning her dead body was found in a school house six miles from her residence. From the appearance of the body it is evident she had been ravished and killed. There are indications that after the murder the body was brought to the schoolhouse and thrown into the building through the window. The young lady was respectable and highly esteemed. Great excitement prevails. There is no clue whatever to the murder.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

—Every variety of confectionery, dates, prunes, etc., at Sechler's, fresh and delicious.

—Operations, on a small scale, were begun in the blacksmith shop at the car works Monday.

—What has become of our Osceola correspondent? A few briefs from that region would be very acceptable.

—To procure pure spices of all kinds you needn't go farther than Sechler's. There you can get them fresh and in full strength.

—Hundreds of clergymen, doctors and others have used Kendall's Spavin Cure with the best success. Read their advertisement.

—The most particular girl in Bellefonte doesn't object to the flavor of Harry Green's cigars, which isn't strange. His smokers are made of the pure article.

—Spring is supposed to be here, but Harry Green's new stock of cigars, embracing some choice brands, are known to be here. They have been tried by hundreds and pronounced O. K.

—A Lock Haven young lady, whose name we withhold, attempted to commit suicide an Sunday night by taking poison. A physician arrived in season to save her life. It was an affair of the heart.

—The celebrated Boston baked beans at Sechler's—the only place in the county where they can be purchased. Try a can for your Sunday morning breakfast and you'll imagine yourself at the Hub, sure.

—Scarlet fever is raging up Buffalo Run. A young son of Mr. James Henderson, of Benner township, died on Saturday night with this disease, and another inmate of the house is very low and not expected to live.

—The Clearfield Times man must be a hard-hearted wretch to concoct a pun out of a murder case. Hear him: "A Sample stabbing affray, which resulted in murder, occurred at Clearfield last week, Friday."

—Velocipede racing on the sidewalks is getting to be a nuisance. An old lady narrowly escaped being run into on Linn street a day or two since by one of these machines going at the rate of about twenty-five miles an hour.

—Newspapers in adjoining counties all have something to say of Bellefonte's growing trade and industries. Our business boom will develop such strength that it will be heard all over the State by the time the season has well begun.

—An important event, at least to one person, the happy father, occurred at the Episcopal church on Sunday last—the baptism of John Paul Jones, an infant son of Mr. William Jones. Captain Breeze and Mr. Roland Irvin acted as god-fathers, and Miss Emily Natt as god-mother. As will be seen the young sailor has been named after the illustrious rover of the seas, Commadore Paul Jones.

—Sechler's & Co. beat the world, including the West Indies, for pure groceries. Every school boy knows that because their parents are all the time talking about it. No matter what you want in the grocery line, you will always find it at Sechler's in all its purity and freshness.

—A very pleasant affair at the Lutheran church, on Saturday evening, was the presentation of a beautiful hymnal to Miss Effie Straub, the organist, by the members of the choir. Mr. William Beck, the leader of the choir, was also presented with one by the church council. This was certainly a very fitting recognition of their services to the church.

—Read the new announcement of the Bee Hive Store in another column. The proprietors have something to say which cannot fail to interest those who are desirous of knowing where to buy a good article cheap, and at the same time have the satisfaction of knowing that they are not purchasing a two-priced article. Messrs Bauland & Newman may justly feel proud of the success which has attended their introduction of the one-price system.

—The Earl of Desart has become a journalist—he has been for a year the responsible Editor of Vanity Fair. He is about to be married to Miss Bischoffsheim, the daughter of the Hebrew financier. The young lady is to receive a dowry of $725,000 and as much more at the death of her father.

Now if the Earl would settle in Bellefonte, and bring his cash with him, he could just more than enjoy life, because don't you see, he would thus be enabled to purchase his groceries of the store of Sechler & Co. Those who buy at this establishment enjoy health, wealth and prosperity those things which are sure to result from the use of pure, fresh groceries.

—Easter Sunday was observed in the Lutheran church of this place by an appropriate sermon prepared especially for the occasion. The altar was tastefully decorated with beautiful flowers. A very commendable feature was the presence of the Sunday-school children, who joined with the congregation. The exercises were interesting and impressive both to the participants and spectators, and could not fail to fill with devotion the hearts and minds of all present. The interest and impressiveness of the occasion were increased by the administration of the sacrament. There was an unusually large number of communicants, many of whom have recently united with the church. Within the past four months there have been eleven additions, five by confirmation and six by certificate. The increasing membership and the interest manifested by all in the welfare of the church are the best indications of the success of the work that is being done in this charge. The efforts that are being made, and the harmonious relations existing between pastor and people, augur well well for the future prosperity of the congregation. The collection taken up at the morning service for the support of home missions exceeded by far what was expected. The new hymnal has been introduced with gratifying results.

The Grand Circus Royal—a Colossal Consolidation of Big Railroad Shows.

THE proprietor of the above concern, having had years of experience in tented amusement enterprise, is enabled to know and thoroughly understand the wants and requirements of the public; and in order to successfully cater for such, it becomes necessary to place before them novelties that are new, pleasing and attractive at the same time, interesting and instructive—and that his past experience, as proprietor and manager of a number of the largest tented exhibitions in America, enables him to more fully realize the fact that he is most competent to so judge as to the various tastes of the amusement-loving public. Each exhibition of arenic skill is of a thoroughly chaste and artistic character; and every endeavor will be made to make it an exhibition which heads of families, schools and educational institutions generally, can consistently patronize. He feels that he cannot too forcibly impress these facts upon the minds of his readers as patrons, for the reason that the public has so often been deceived by misrepresentations of proprietors managers and agents; and that it now reads with caution and distrust most of the amusement annoucements of the day, being aware of these facts. The proprietor promises that his energy, capital and ability will be displayed to its fullest extent to please the public; that no portion of his glorious and mighty combination can be surpassed, either in novelty or attraction; and, in conclusion, he promises that his entire consolidated railroad shows shall be refined, moral and chaste, and asks the generous public to have reliance in his promises, and confidence in his integrity and ability to please the thousands of patrons who will visit the leviathan consolidation during the season.

No broken promises! No empty brag! But a show that towers, like the Alpines, above all others!

It has built a reputation for honesty and fair dealing that is echoed from the broad Atlantic to the mighty Pacific.

The Younger Brothers and Frank and Jesse James.

The Historical Publishing Co., of St. Louis, Mo., has just issued a complete history of the noted Younger Brothers and Frank and Jesse James, bringing the events in the lives of these airy gentlemen of the highway down to the present time. It is a volume of over four hundred pages, containing more than forty illustrations, and printed and bound in good style. Mr. J. W. Buel, the anthor, has been engaged during the last three years in collecting and preparing his materials, and recently visited the younger brothers in the Minnesota penitentiary for the purpose of verifying certain portions of his work. It is said to be of the most exciting and thrilling character, and its selling qualities are indicated by the fact that more than 10,000 copies were ordered in advance of publication. See advertisement elsewhere.

Given up by Doctors.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters; and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!"

"Well-a-day! That is remarkable! I will go this day and get some for my poor George—I know hops are good."—Salem Post. 16-2t

A CURE AT LAST.—Specifics without number for the cure of Catarrh have been extensively advertised, and doubtless there is some virtue in all, but the evidence is overwhelming that Ely's Cream Balm goes more directly than any other to the seat of disease, and though it is a comparatively new discovery, it has resulted in more cures within the range of our observation than all the others put together. Special Announcement.

THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR!

"The many have too few, and the few too many."

What is the use of wasting a dollar when you can save it?

Big prices will not do in these times, when even the wealthy cannot afford to waste their money, and the poor require double duty of every dollar and every penny.

Not by favor, but by merit alone will we maintain and increase our unrivaled reputation.

We deal in good Goods and not trash, and believe the masses will patronize that house that sells the best Goods for the least money.

Buy for cash and at one price. Who can tell the waste of money when you get your goods of houses that buy and sell on long time?

This is the music and these the prices that crowd our store, whilst other merchants sleep on their counters, little dreaming of the day of disaster and ruin awaiting all who buy on long time and sell on longer; who pay big prices, and sell at figures that no people can afford to pay.

OUR PRINCIPLES.

At the very foundation of our undertaking in. Bellefonte is the One Price system.

Respectable merchants generally have but One Price for most goods, but the temptation to make exceptions now and then proves too strong for all, but very few.

Here the rule is absolute. We are so committed to the One Price system that an exception in any department, no matter how great the temptation, would disgrace us.

One Price, if stuck to, has to be a moderate price, a fair price. Let that be your assurance in your dealings with the Bee Hive Stores.

Respectfully yours,

Bauland & Newman,

Bellefonte Republican.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

Break in the Solid South.

WASHINGTON, April 12.–The movement to unite the Republicans, Greenbackers and Independents in Mississippi in opposition to Democrats in the approaching State election has been organized. Ex-Congressman McKee has been appointed to organize a Fusion State Committee, and he is to be its chairman. Ex-Governor Alcorn will be the candidate of the Fusionists for Governor, and they count upon getting many Democratic votes. The President sustains the movement, and will give it his countenance and support. One policy of the Fusionists will be to put good men on the ticket, and thus overcome the fear of the whites of negro domination. Prominent men from Mississippi, who have been active in getting up the Fusion movement, think it will divide the colored vote, and change the politics of Mississippi. Similar movements are being organized in North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana and Arkansas, and it is expected to make it general in the South.

Western Outlaw Killed.

SANTA FE, April 13.—A desperado named Baker, with other companions, entered this place and proceeded openly to rob stores. He was shot dead by a Frenchman.

How They do it in Arkansas.

ST. LOUIS, April 12.—The Republican's Little Rock special says: A body of armed and masked men rode into Toledo, Dorsey county, some sixty miles south of here, at daybreak yesterday morning, and while part of them surrounded the court house as guards the remainder broke into the Treasurer's office, blew open the safe, abstracted therefrom $5,000 to $10,000, mounted their horses and escaped. The alarm was immediately sounded and a large number of officers and citizens started in pursuit, The robbers were well mounted, but as the whole county is aroused it is believed they will certainly be captured.

Posting Mexican Troops.

DENVER, Col., April 13. — Five hundred Mexican troops have been stationed at El Paso, anticipating trouble between natives and Americans when railroads get further into Mexico.

Unknown Vessel on Fire.

BOSTON, April 12.—A despatch from Highland Light, Cape Cod, states that a vessel was seen on fire from that point at half-past seven P. M. Saturday, bearing north about ten miles, but owing to the darkness her class could not be discovered. The vessel looked like a two-masted steamer, square rigged on the foremast. At a quarter to eight both masts were in flames, and at eight o'clock she had disappeared. The weather was calm and the sea smooth at the time.

Another Earthquake in Chio.

CHIO, April 12.—A violent shock of earthquake, lasting four seconds and increasing gradually in strength, passed over the island to-day, followed by falling houses on all sides.

This gives him complete control of the Southern Pacific route.

Sitting Bull to Surrender.

ST. PAUL, April, 13.—A Popular River special to the Pioneer-Press says that Captain McDonald, of the Canadian mounted police, has just arrived at camp and announces that Sitting Bull will come to Buford with the shattered remnants of his band and surrender as soon as McDonald returns to Woody Mountains. This news is confirmed by official advices received at headquarters here.

The Wild Winds.

MEMPHIS, April 14, The Appeal's Hernado, Mississippi, special gives the following particulars of a tornado which devastated that locality yesterday. The cyclone did serious damage. Commencing about a mile north of Hernado it struck Mr. Riley's steam gin completely demolishing it and carying away a wagon team, driver included, landing them in a ditch half a mile distant. His blacksmithshop was carried some distance. Frank Howard's house was carried nearly fifty yards, but not injured. L. Robertson's house was blown down. Jim Hunter's cabin was next struck, killing Liza Evans and injuring two children. The house was torn to pieces and covered by fallen trees. Many other buildings were destroyed, and the pieces scattered in all directions.

The track of the tornado was about four hundred yards wide. Deputy Sheriff Johnson was caught and blown off his horse, which was carried inio the air, and had both legs broken. Men were blown all over the fields like barrels, and nearly beaten to death against the ground. Many farms were totally demolished.

The Reading Contest.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—The court yesterday decreed that Bond was elected President of the Reading Railroad but refused to put him in possession of the road. This he must secure by writ of quo warranto.

Small-pox Panic.

CINCINNATI, April 14.—The town of Glovers Gap, West Va., is in a state of panic over the alarming spread of small-pox. The disease was brought there by a young man from Pittsburgh. A. J. Cassatt, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has contracted for the erection of a magnificent barn on his farm in Montgomery county. It will be a model in point of style and convenience. It will cost $21,000.

Kicked to Death.

LANCASTER, April 10.—On March 29 two men registered themselves at the Grape Hotel, this city, W. B. Finney, proprietor, as Luther J. Hurd of Boston and P. Moran of Philadelphia. Both were traveling salesmen, Hurd representing a book firm. On Thursday of last week Moran suddenly disappeared, and in the evening Finney informed Hurd that his partner had left without paying his bill and denounced Moran as a "sneak" and "a bum," intimating that Hurd was no better. The latter declared that he was no partner of Moran's but defended him, saying he believed him to be an honest man and that he would send the amount of the bill when he reached home. In this conjecture he was right, as the money arrived the next day. Finney and Hurd had a good many words about the matter, resulting in the former striking the latter and knocking him down. Hurd also declared that Finney kicked him while down, but this Finney emphatically denied. At any rate Hurd suffered from a rupture of the urethra, causing a terrible hemorrhage. He was placed on a chair and Dr. Rowland, a boarder at the hotel, was summoned. The injured man was removed to his room where every attention was given him and later in the evening the venerable Dr. John L. Atlee was summoned in consultation. Yesterday, in an interview with Dr. Rowland, he informed your correspondent that Hurd's condition was not at all dangerous, and this may have been the case, but an unfortunate (if not positively neglectful) occurrence on somebody's part last night resulted in the man's death. At 10 o'clock he was seen and appeared to be resting nicely, when he was left alone for the night. At an early hour this morning he was found in his room in an almost unconscious condition—just able to tell that about midnight, as he supposed, the hemorrhage recurred and he rang a bell for assistance, but no one answered the call.

When his condition was discovered this morning Dr. Rowland was quickly summoned, and soon after Dr. Atlee was called, but the latter arrived only in time to see him die, which occurred about 7 o'clock. Coroner Mishler was notified and impaneled the following jury: B. Frank Slough, David L. Wissner, Emanual Reifsnyder, Al, Rosenstein, Jacob Chillas and John Barr. The jurors were sworn, after which they adjourned to meet to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock in the Orphans' Court room. Thomas F. McElliot was sworn to take testimony. Drs. Atlee, Rowland, Compton and Davis were also sworn. and at once proceeded to make a post-mortem examination, the result of which will be given to the jury to-morrow evening. Finney will be held for manslaughter, and it now appears that an elderly gentleman (a bachelor who had boarded at the "Grape" an ordinary lifetime) was witness to at least a part of the punishment inflicted by Finney upon Hurd, although the matter was kept exceedingly quiet until the fatal termination of this morning.

Hurd was about thirty years of age, unmarried. and claimed Boston as his home, although for years he had been so constantly "on the road" as scarcely to be able to claim any place as his home. He had $4000 in bonds in his possession at the time of this occurrence. The Grape Hotel is perhaps the oldest in this city, and in years past was one of the most reputable. It was kept by the Michael family for a generation or more, and Henry Michael an aged gentleman, who had been clerk of the house for nearly half a century, is said to have resigned his position immediately after this assault was committed. Finney, the present proprietor, was engaged in the livery business prior to taking possession of this hotel. He is fully six feet tall and heavy in proportion. while Hurd was a small, delicate man. The affair has caused great excitement, and not a little indignation is expressed against Finney.

AN OLD MAN'S SAD PLIGHT.—David Gorrell, known all over Berks county, Pennsylvanin, as the oldest Blue Mountain hunter, was recently found half frozen and almost dead in the little cabin remote from civilization in which he has prolonged a strange existence for more than half a century. His custom has been to purchase every autumn in the nearest village a stock of provisions, and to disappear with them to the mountains, where he remained unseen all winter. People passing his cabin a week or two ago saw no smoke arising from it, and on the following day, noticing the same circumstance, they broke in and found Gorrell, now nearly seventy years old, lying more dead than alive on a bed of skins. He refused to leave his cheerless habitation, saying that he wished to live and die in solitude.

Captain C. A. Boutelle, editor of the Bangor Whig, who figured prominently in the Maine campaign last September, is dangerously ill. His wife died a few days ago.

A Bobolink's Perseverence.

A correspondent in the Christian Mirror tells the story of a young bobolink in the family of a clergyman at Great Barrington, Mass. He was caged at first apart from a pair of canaries, which were in another cage in the same room. The Bobolink never sang at all from June to December, until he was permitted to share in the same cage the civilities of his neighbors, the canaries, who had been so long entertaining him with their sweet and unwearied strains. When admitted to the same cage with them, he tried most assiduously to learn their song—at first however, for a long time, with miserable success enough. He would stand and watch them with an agony of attention, and then try to imitate their notes. He would swell out his throat and stretch up his neck as they did, and then, with a violent effort, try to sound one note, which, in spite of all his zeal and labor, proved to be a mere rough scream. At this humiliating failure he would be so enraged and provoked that he would fly at his inoffensive and well-meaning mates and teachers, and peck them most unmercifully and drive them from their perch. So he did for two or three weeks before any apparent progress was made in his studies. But his perseverence was equal to the difficulties he had to overcome. At length he could sound one note well, and one only. And so he continued for some weeks longer, learning one note at a time, till he had finally completed the whole canary song and could sing it to perfection. Then he would sing with them in perfect harmony and perfect time, always closing at the exact note with them.

It is also a little singular that although through all this training he was never known to begin to make a sound till the canaries had first struck the key-note, yet, after he had acquired the skill to sing their song, he must always himself now give the signal by a significant cluck; when instantly the canaries, generously forgetting or forgiving his former incivilities, would strike in with him and perform the piece with the greatest perfection and with the highest delight to themselves and the listening family, who enjoyed this singular concert through the early part of every day for the whole summer.

A Duellist's Experience.

Baron de San Malata, a Sicillian and a noted duelist, has recently gone to Paris to find a test of his skill as a combatant. He has fought forty duels, but in none has he been the challenger. It is told of him that during a heated political canvass, in the course of a discussion in a public square with a first cousin, the latter called him by some opprobrious epithet. The Baron replied: "You are a coward!" The cousin answered: "Will you repeat that in five minutes?" "Assuredly."

The cousin went home, and returned with a revolver in his hand. The Baron went up to him and said: "Guiseppe, see here! That revolver don't suit your hand; the stock never was made for you; for the life of you, you could not use that pistol." As he ceased to speak he spat in his cousin's face. The suddenness and strangeness of this speech and attack so bewildered the cousin that he neither said nor did anything. The Baron spat on his face again. Friends interfered. The cousin challenged the Baron. The eve of the duel the Baron's aunt, who knew what an expert swordsman he was begged him to spare her son's life. He replied, "Guiseppe shall return from the field without even a scratch." The duel took place. The cousin attacked furiously. The Baron only parried. At last he turned his head and looked at his seconds until his adversary became so weak that he could no longer hold his sword, when the seconds interfered and ended the duel. At another time he was challenged by the best broadswordsman in Sicily, while he himself was not skilled with this weapon. The broadsword was selected by the seconds. On the field the Baron took his sword in both hands and rushed upon his adversary, using his weapon as if it were a club. His adversary retreated. They were put in position; at the first pass the Baron's sword broke within eighteen inches of the hilt; his adversary kept on; the seconds did not interfere. The Baron became furious, rushed on his adversary, wounded him; then turned on the seconds and wounded every one of them, beginning with his own.

The vicar of a village near Gravesend, England, who is somewhat unpopular with some of his parishioners made certain remarks in a recent sermon at which a lady smiled scornfully. The vicar walked down from his rostrum to the pew where the lady was seated, and, having given her a good shaking, returned to his place and finished his discourse.

George I. Seney, President of the New York Metropolitan National Bank, has given $50,000 to the Wesleyan Female College, at Macon, Georgia. The conditions attending the gift have not been made known. Mr. Seney recently gave $10,000 to the endowment fund of Emory College, Oxford, Ga, and he has increased this gift to $50,000.

Professor Richard A. Proctor says that in a recent journey he was much struck by the resemblance of the Western plains to the surface of the moon.

The Law of Auction.*

An auction is sale of land, goods, or a right in auction, in public. It is an effective means to excite competition: whence the derivation of the word, Latin augere, to increase—the price.

A bid at any auction is an offer to pay a specified price for property up for sale. By-bidding or puffing is any fictitious bidding, designed not to save from sacrifice, but as an artifice to mislead the minds of real bidders. It deceives and involves a falsehood, and is regarded therefore as a fraud. But a price may be fixed under which no sale will be made, provided public notice thereof be given.

The conditions of sale should state whether or not (1) the sale is without reserve, and (2) a right to bid is reserved. A material error in the description of real estate makes the sale not void, but voidable. A defaulting purchaser may be made to pay a deficiency on a resale. The auctioneer may not bid for himself, nor by his agent. This, too, even though he bid a fair price. The reason is because the law will not allow a test between interest and duty. Till the sale he acts for the vendor; after the sale, for some purposes, as to take a case out of the Statute of Frauds, he is agent for the buyer. To save a sale of real estate from the operation of that statute he must write the buyer's name in the memorandum of sale. He has a special property in goods, and a lien for costs and commissions. If the vendor is undisclosed he is liable as vendor. He is also liable for want of due care and skill.

MANHOOD How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's celebrated Essay on the radical cure of Spermatorrhoea or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

The Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Van Dyke's SULPHUR SOAP

Is superior to all other soaps. It is combined with Sulphur in its pure, unadulterated state, which enters the pores of the skin, being absorbed into the blood through the minute capillaries, and thus acts upon the skin, whether it is healthy or in a diseased condition, both locally and constitutionally, thereby eliminating all impurities from the blood, and exciting the skin to healthy action. It produces a fineness, purity, and freshness of the complexion which is unequalled, and can be produced by no other means. No toilet, nursery or bath room is complete without it. It makes the skin pure, clear, white and healthy; is cleansing, deodorizing, disinfecting, soothing, healing and purifying; removes dandruff, chafing, ulcers, sores, eruptions, roughness and redness of the skin; relieves itching, burning and stinging of the skin, and irritation of biting and stinging insects; will relieve itching piles when nothing else will have any effect. Ask for VAN DYKE'S SULPHUR SOAP; insist upon it, and take no imitation. Sold by druggists. Aschenbach & Miller, proprietors, 301 Callowhill street, Philadelphia. 12-20-1y

Bob Ingersoll's Creed.

Some one sends us a little fact containing epigrammatic expressions from Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll's latest lecture, "What must we do to be saved?" We have read the tract and we have read the entire lecture. If this is truly Ingersoll's creed, the Colonel isn't far out of the way. He manages to get considerable scripture into his creed, as he sets it forth. There is lots of hope; in fact, there is a great deal of certainty for the Colonel. We subjoin a few articles of this great man's creed, just to show from what book he gets his declaration of faith.

'Honest industry is as good as pious idleness,' says the colonel.

Well, that's all right. That's orthodox. The Bible says the same thing and said it long before the colonel thought of it—'Faith without good works is dead.'

'Christ believed the temple of God to be the heart of man.'—Ingersoll.

Yes that's orthodox too. We 'must worship him in the spirit.' 'Know ye not that ye are the temples of the Holy Ghost?'

'If I go to heaven I want to take my reason with me.'—Ingersoll.

Of course, and so you will, 'for now we see through a glass darkly, but there face to face; now I know in part, but then I shall know even as I am known.'—Corinthians, xiii. 12.

'Fear is a dagger with which hypocrisy assassinates the soul.'—Ingersoll.

'That is good gospel, and 'perfect love casteth out fear.'

'If I owe Smith ten dollars, and God forgave me, that doesn't pay Smith.'—Ingersoll.

Correct you are; the prayer of Christianity is 'forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.' 'Owe no man anything.'

'Reason is the light of the soul and if you haven't the right to follow it, what have you a right to follow?'—Ingersoll.

'Yet in the church I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that by my voice I might teach others also, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue. Brethern, be not children in understanding; howbeit in malace be ye children, but in understanding be men.—Corinthians, xiv, 19, 20.

'If you go to hell, it will be for not practicing the virtues which the Sermon on the Mount proclaims.'—Ingersoll.

That's all orthodox. 'If ye know these things happy are ye if ye do them.'

'The men who saw the miracles all died long ago. I wasn't acquainted with any of 'em.'—Ingersoll.

Same way with the men who saw Servetus burned. But the colonel most firmly believes that Servetus was burned.

'A little miracle now, right here—would do more towards the advancement of Christianity than all the preaching of the last thirty years.'—Ingersoll.

'If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead.'—Luke, xvii, 31.

'If there is a God in the universe he will not damn an honest man.'—

'A false balance is an abomination unto the Lord; but a just weight is his delight.'—Proverbs, xi, 1,

'There is only one true worship, and that is the practice of justice.—Ingersoll

'Render therefore unto Caesar the things which be Caesar's and unto the God the things which be God's'—Luke, xx. 25.

'God will not damn a good citizen, a good father, or a good friend.'—Ingersoll.

Certainly not; nor any good man. A good man showeth favor and lendeth; he will guide his affairs with discretion. Surely he shall not be moved forever; the righteous remembrance.—Psalms, xxii. 5,6

'Study the religion of the body in preference to the religion of the soul. A healthy body will give a healthy mind, and a healthy mind will destroy superstition.—Ingersoll.

That explains why the Indians have no superstitions.

People who have the smallest souls make the most fuss about saving them '—Ingersoll.

Of course Colonel; they are the hardest kind to save.

'I will never ask God to treat me any fairer than I treat my fellow men.'—Ingersoll'.

Well that's perfectly orthodox. 'For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you; but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.' 'For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged; and with what measure ye mete, shall be measured to you.'

'Upon the shadowy shore of death the sea of trouble casts no wave.—Ingersoll

The Colonel must have been singing that good old hymn, 'When I can read my title clear, in which occur the lines:

"And not a wave of trouble roll
Across my peaceful breast."

"How do you like my spring clothes?" asked Leander. "Pretty well," replied Hero doubtfully and then added: "But I think I should like you better in a walking suit." He sat wrapt in silent thought for about five minutes, then got up and walked slowly away in the suit he had on.

Ex-Vice President Wheeler said at the reception given him at Malone, that he returned "divested of all official title, to pass the balance of my years with you as a private citizen."

Is a sure cure for all the ordinary diseases of Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine. It cures and prevents Chicken Cholera. Your cow is certain to yield 25 per cent more and better milk and butter. Stock fattens on one-fourth less feed!

Being in possession of a large number of excellent testimonials, I subjoin a few:

I have been using your Cattle Powder for horses, cows, chickens and pigs, and find it a first class thing.—GEORGE BOND, Germantown, Pa.

Please send me half a gross of Cattle Powder. I have used two packs on my cow and chickens. The cow gave nearly twice the quantity of milk that she did before, and gave twice the amount of butter. My chickens were dying, but were cured immediately after I had used the powder. Yours truly, JONAS PASOUR, Dallas, N. C.

I have used and compared your Cattle Powder with all others, and must say it is the best for horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, &c. I have tried it on poultry for many complaints, with success in every case.—JONATHAN WEAVER, Berrysburg, Pa.

Last summer you sent me a pack of your powder which I gave to my poultry, and have not had one droopy turkey or chicken since.—MRS. WM. KNAPP, Orange, N. Y.

Send me a pack or two of your Cattle Powder. The pack I got from you last winter cured the chicken cholera. I gave some of it to a neighbor and it cured his chickens.—JOHN WILLIAMS, Spruce Vale, Ohio.

—It is thought that a change of some sort will be made in the running of trains on the Snow Shoe road the 1st of May.

—With the shifting of so much freight at the depot teamsters have to keep a pretty sharp lookout to prevent being run into.

—Philipsburgers are happy over the prospect of a telephone exchange in that place, and also a commercial wire from Tyrone to that town.

—Captain W. W. Potter, who has been confined to his house by illness for a lengthy period, has sufficiently recovered to be able to be about again.

—Davy Ballet will not join a base ball club this season. Says he gets all the exercise he wants in jerking freight cars around and lifting box cars on the track.

—Harry, an infant son of Mr. Jacob Newman, had the misfortune to fall and cut a very severe gash in his chin. Dr. Hibler was called in and dressed the wound.

—Mr. William Long, an employe of Valentines' rolling mill, met with a painful accident on Tuesday last. In attempting to catch a roll of iron his tongs missed, and the metal dropped upon his foot, injuring it quite severely. He experiences considerable difficulty in walking.

—At the conclusion of the rifle practice by Co. B, at the Fair Grounds on Saturday, Harry Valentine, of the Sportsmen's Club, tested his new revolver for long range shooting. He fired one shot and scored "3," which is tolerably good shooting for a hundred yards distance.

—In Centre county there are seventeen candidates for the county superintendency of public schools.—[McVeytown Journal. Well, what are you going to do about it? Guess we can have a hundred and seventeen if we want to. You ought to be able to stand it if we can.

—The Altoona Sun seems doomed to a life of uncertainty. On Tuesday last E. B. Haines, proprietor of the Call, purchased the good will and subscription lists of the Sun Publishing Co., but the Messrs. Barclay, the present publishers, refuse to vacate, and a lawsuit will be the result.

Lumber Operations on Marsh Creek.

A year ago last November your readers probably found a brief notice among the locals that John T. Fowler, Esq., of Fowler Station, on the B. E. V. railroad, had purchased the Curtin timber lands at the princely sum of $62,000. Since that time comparatively little has been known of the mighty lumber operations going on in our midst. Now, Mr. Editor, with your permission, I shall be as brief as possible to give your many readers a fair idea, and for this purpose your correspondent called on Messrs. Richard Beaston and Thomas Ballin, the gentlemen who have the management of the business of Mr. Fowler's along the Marsh Creek valley, hence we know whereof we write. It may be a slight digression to give a pen picture of these men, but allow me to digress. Mr. Beaston has small, regular features, dark hair and eyes; indications show that all the grandeur, attributes of mental ability, are fully developed in him. Mr. Ballin, or "Tom," as he is familiarly called, is a hard worker, and no man in this State gets his men to their posts at the proper hour, and sees that all things are pushed to their fullest extent, any better than he, and when necessary puts his shoulder to the wheel to shove matters along. He has been Mr. Fowler's "boss" for thirteen years. He can look right through a log and see a defect on the other side. He wears kid gloves on Sunday, and then only when he goes to meeting.

Harry Kepheart, the young man who presides over the books, has a brisk, business like expression. Small in stature, courteous, and cordial in manner towards all.

John T. Fowler resides at Greenwood, Centre county, where he owns the best constructed edifice on the line of the B. E. V. railroad. Mr. Fowler is a gentleman of strict business habits, a model of intelligence and refinement—cool, deliberate and decisive in all his transactions. He has the most perfect system, adopted in every detail, which has been a guiding star to success. In the purchase referred to Mr. Fowler came into possession of the largest and best body of timber in this or any of the adjoining counties, and for its manufacture has erected two extensive steam saw mills, and manufactures what among lumbermen is known as "bill stuff," consisting of heavy building timber, car timber, ship timber—in fact, anything that can be made from logs, and employs, directly and indirectly, through his stockers, one hundred and fifty men. Mill No. 1 is situated about three miles from Eagleville, on Marsh creek. Here is also a shingle and lath mill in connection, with a daily average capacity of 20,000 feet. Geo. W. Lyon handles the lever here, and as a sawyer has no superior. A. R. Price is "mill man," and keeps the orders straight, and attends to the lumber after leaving the saw. Robert Welsh is the "boss chopper," and with his crew gets out the logs in the wood and log yard to suit the orders, and puts them to the mill. James McKinney is stable boss, and attends to the care and distribution of feed to the stock. Joseph R. De Hass and John A. Daily had contracts for putting in logs for this mill, in addition to a large stock cut and put in by Mr. Fowler himself, and had a successful log drive and succeeded in starting most of the logs on their way to the mill, and getting a great many there.

Mill No. 2 is also on Marsh creek, near the farm of Judge Orvis, some six miles from mill No. 1, and cuts almost exclusively oak, and has a capacity of 15,000 feet daily average. Wm. T. Fowler has charge of this mill, and pushes things in a characteristic way. A man of decided ability, everybody's friend, he understands all about machinery, and keeps up repairs without sending them to the shop. Addison Squires, is sawyer, and stands a No. 1 in his line. J. D. Gardner is contractor to stock this mill, and has done a big winter's work.

It is apropos to say that this mill could be run by natural gas for fuel. Some of the parties in the neighborhood could supply it. Robert Beatty, John J. Laumer are yard dispatchers, and attend to shipping all the lumber.

H. W. Hoover, of Unionville, has about fifty wood choppers at work on Mr. Fowler's land, and expects to coal 200,000 bushels of charcoal this coming season.

Mr. Fowler has also purchased the Peter Ritter farm, and has commenced putting it in good shape. Peter has quit farming, and it is rumored that he expects to travel with Bob Ingersol. Mr. Fowler has been doing a large business for the past two months. Last week he shipped 25 cars containing 225,000 feet of lumber. This summer he expects to get out a large quantity of bark, which will give employment to a large number of men.

David B. Delong, the champion dam builder, a short time ago finished a model splash dam for Mr. Fowler on Marsh creek, and has about finished cribbing the stream, which makes it as good a driving stream as there is in the country. The first flood of the season, which carried devastation and destruction before it from Milesburg to Lock Haven, carried away the bridges at Holter's, Mt. Eagle, Howard dam, and the one at Eagleville over which all the lumber is hauled to the depot. Several prominent men wanted to have the county put up an iron bridge, but Mr. Fowler, whose confidence in wood has never been shaken, said, "I'll put up a bridge that the floods can't carry away." So at it he went, and in the remarkably short time of twelve days had a good, substantial bridge, 140 feet long, with but one pier. The second flood that came, two days after the completion of the bridge, carried with it the heavy ice gorges that had gathered in Bald Eagle, endangering the new bridge. All eyes were now turned towards it. Could it stand with such a pressure? A moment's suspense: a heavy crash is heard; the pier darts out, and after it the massive body of ice, and passes safely by, leaving the bridge "solid"—a monument to the skill of its projector. More About the Clearfield Jail Murder.

The murder of goodman, in the Clearfield jail, is regarded in that locality as the result of a conspiracy. The parties, Patrick Goodman and Kate Sample, obtained admission to the jail by claiming a relationship to one of the inmates. The Republican says:

The jailor was persuaded to allow the visitors to enter the cell of the notorious outlaw, George Evans, who is awaiting sentence, having been convicted at the January term of manslaughter, for the killing of a Swede near Houtzdale in June last. Edward Goodman, Jr., or "Goodwin," as it is written in the commitment, was also allowed admittance. When in Evan's cell, which is on the second story, Evans and Ed. Goodman got to quarreling about some toy furniture that Evans had manufactured, and during the fight Goodman received a couple of stabs in the abdomen, one of which entered the heart and caused his death in fifteen or twenty minutes. After being stabbed Goodman started down stairs, and when near the foot of the stairway fell dead. Patrick Goodman, who that afternoon before going to the prison had visited the hardware store and procured some cartridges for his revolver, it is alleged, then attempted to shoot Evans, and would no doubt have succeeded had it not been for the Sheriff's wife, who appeared on the scene at this time and interfered. Pat and his paramour left the prison, got in their buggy and went over the Second street bridge to West Clearfield, where they inquired the way to Luthersburg, where they were arrested a few hours after.

LATER.

Facts have come to light since these wonderful events have occurred to the effect that there was an organized conspiracy, on the part of bad men and women, outside of their proper rooms, to liberate the prisoners confined in our prison, and pistols, knives, etc., had been procured to bring about a general jail delivery.

It is, indeed, a miracle that the jailor and the Sheriff's wife are not numbered among the dead. A more brazen conspiracy was never put on foot to liberate prisoners.

—An unruly individual, an employe of the Howard Iron Works, was arrested in Smith's saloon, on Bishop street, on Saturday afternoon and landed in the lock-up. He was intoxicated when he entered the saloon, and the bartender, noticing his condition, refused to give him more drink, whereupon he became wrathy, and seizing the dispenser of liquid refreshments, threw him to the floor. An officer put in an appearance about this time, and took the thirsty man into custody. On the way to the lock-up he attempted to change places with the officer, but was unsuccessful, and went on without further resistance.

—A bill has been introduced into the House for the regulation of salaries of county commissioners all over the State. In counties having populations of 100,000 and less than 150,000 each commissioner is to have a fixed salary of $1,000 per annum; in counties having 75,000 and less than 100,000, $800; in counties having 50,000 and under 75,000, $5000; and in counties having less than 50,000, $400. Should this bill become a law, the commissioners of Centre county would receive a salary of $400.

—A number of our citizens have been engaged in a controversy as to whether Good Friday is or is not a legal holiday. In this State it is a legal holiday, having been made so by act of the Legislature. All official business is suspended and banks and schools closed in Pennsylvania on that day. It is not, however, as some suppose, a National holiday, as the law in force in this State does not extend to other States of the union.

The County Superintendency.

The question, "Who shall be our next County Superintendent?" is one of much importance both to the parents and children of Centre county. We have a number of worthy gentlemen presenting themselves as candidates, and desiring the suffrages of the School Directors. In looking over the list and carefully examining the qualifications of the respective candidates, I feel free to say that, in my judgment, John Mason Duncan has a special and unusual fitness for the work. He possesses rare and varied talents, and is well educated. He has had several years' very successful experience as a teacher in the schools of different grades in the county of Centre and other counties of the State. He is warmly devoted to the educational interests of the young, and with his general and accurate information knows how to adapt his instructions to the needs, both of teachers and pupils.

Mr. Duncan is energetic, sympathetic and zealous, and will be faithful in all he undertakes. He has a high standard as a Christian educator, and cannot fail to excite in the minds of the young high and noble aims and aspirations, and will exert a good influence on all with whom he has intercourse.

I believe the best thing that can be done at the present time for the welfare of our common schools is to elect John Mason Duncan our County Superintendent. J. P. HUGHES.

Co. B Boys Try their Rifles.

Eighteen or twenty members of Co. B, in full uniform, with Capt. Mullen in command, marched to the Fair Grounds on Saturday afternoon to take their first lessons in rifle shooting. It was not expected, of course, that many bull's-eyes would be scored, as, with a few exceptions, the members of the company have had little or no experience in handling firearms. The range was a hundred yards, and, on the whole, the work performed was creditable. George Wolf did the best shooting, and Messrs. Hale, Powers, Geissinger and Garret stood next, their scores being about equal in count. It will naturally require some time for the men to become used to their pieces, until which time rapid progress in accurate shooting will be impossible. The sights on the guns, too, are defective for target shooting, at least for short range.

The boys enjoyed the sport hugely, and expressed the desire to repeat the trial at an early day, which opportunity will no doubt will be given.

Planing Mill Extension.

Work is brisk at Crider's box factory and planing mill, and bids fair to continue so for an indefinite period. The firm has several large orders ahead for boxes, upon which work will be commenced as soon as the improvements now in progress are completed. The planing mill is crowded with work at present. Mr. T. R. Hamilton, the superintendent, informs us that, for the past few days, the mill has turned out, on the average, 20,000 feet of planed lumber per day, the work of one machine, which, from our knowledge of planing mill matters, is pretty rapid work. In order to increase the capacity a 20x50 foot addition will be built to the mill, and is now in process of erection. The main building, in which the manufacture of boxes is carried on, will also be extended in length.

—Messrs. G. Lyon & Co., of Bellefonte, have purchased the two large mercantile establishments of Hoover, Hughes & Co., the one located in North Houtzdale and the other in Philipsburg. The firm of Messrs Lyon & Co. are prominently known as one of the active and enterprising business houses of Central Penn'a., and it is with pleasure we welcome them to our midst.—Philipsburg Journal.

—At a meeting of the Bellefonte orchestra on Thursday night the organization voted to give their share of the receipts accruing from Miss Ohnmacht's concert, in which the orchestra will take part, to the Young Men's Christian Association. This action will no doubt be highly appreciated by the Association.

—There is some prospect of the Mountain City band being reorganized this season. If the members make a move in this direction it is to be hoped that our citizens will lend them substantial aid and encouragement. A town the size of Bellefonte should not be without a band, and a good one.

—The treasurer of the Huntingdon Presbytery, which met at Osceola last week, reports that the missionary collections taken in the Presbytery at its meetings last spring in Bellefonte and in the fall at Birmingham, were exactly the same in amount, each being $37.25. Curiously singular, don't it?

—Sleighing is reported excellent in some parts of Clearfield county.

Easter Services.

The observance of Easter Sunday in Bellefonte was more general, and in many instances more elaborate Sunday than for many years past. The festival is peculiarly Roman Catholic and Episcopalian, and the celebrations by these denominations, by music and floral display, become more prominent with each year. The St. John's Protestant Episcopal church was filled with a large congregation to witness the Easter ceremonies, which were strikingly impressive. Rev. John Hewitt, the pastor, preached a deeply interesting sermon, embodying the last words uttered by Christ on the cross. The music, vocal and instrumental, was of a high character, and very appropriate to the solemn services. The floral display was extensive and beautiful, notwithstanding the committees experienced considerable difficulty in procuring material for decorating purposes. Growing plants, in boxes and pots, in full bloom, were distributed about the altar, and the communion table, with its wealth of wreaths and bouquets, presented an attractive appearance. Children's services were held in the afternoon, in place of Sunday-school exercises.

At the St. John's Roman Catholic church the services were specially impressive. Some appropriate chants, solemn and inspiring, were rendered by the choir, and the celebration of mass was a striking feature of the services, as it always is on such occasions. The display of flowers was elaborate and of a beautiful description.

The festival was also observed at the Lutheran church with services especially prepared for the occasion.

A Happy Reunion.

The residence of Mrs. Roland Curtin, on Allegheny street, was the scene of an exceedingly pleasant gathering on Thursday evening of last week, although limited to a few persons. Five sisters, daughters of the late John Irvin, of this county, and sisters of the late Gen. James Irvin, met together in reunion, for the first time in many years. They are: Mrs. James Potter, Mrs. Andrew Gregg, Mrs. Moses Thompson, Mrs. W. W. Potter and Mrs. Roland Curtin. Their ages range from 60 to 79 years, the oldest, Mrs. James Potter, whose home is in Chicago, being in her 80th year. The others reside in Centre county. With the exception of Mrs. Thompson, who met with an unfortunate accident about two years ago, from the effects of which she still suffers, the sisters are all enjoying good health, and sprightly for their years. May they live to meet in each other's presence many times again before a vacancy is made in the circle.

The Coming Concert.

The musical entertainment to be given by Miss Ohnmacht's class of pupils, aided by the Bellefonte Orchestra, in Humes' Hall, on Tuesday evening of next week, promises to be the grandest event of the kind ever given in Bellefonte. A large number of the best musicians of the town will take part, and the programme will be more varied and entertaining than on any previous occasion. The Bellefonte Orchestra has been in constant practice during the winter, and will show much improvement. The price of admission has been placed at 50 cents for reserved seats, 35 cents for ordinary admission, and 25 cents for the gallery. Tickets will be for sale at the usual places in a few days, and persons should secure reserved seats early.

Trimming Trees.

The season for trimming trees is here. A favorite plan is to hack off the top branches, the effect of which is to retard the growth of the tree, disfigures the trunk and limbs with ugly knobs, and to cause a scrubby growth of small branches from the crippled trunk. Some one, who is supposed to understand the matter, says: By reserving the clipping process for lower limbs the growth of the tree will be assisted, and the elevated branches will spread, making a pleasant shade and leaving space below for a free circulation of air.

—A meeting of the Centre County Agricultural Society will be held in the Court House on Monday evening, April 25th. All members are requested to be present. Whitman S. Jordan, M. S., professor of agriculture at the State College, will deliver a lecture before the society on that night on "Barrenness; its cause and remedy." The lecture will be well worth hearing, and farmers who live near to town should make an effort to be present.

—A strong base ball club is to be organized in Philipsburg this season. If Bellefonte would follow suit, now, we might have a series of games for the county championship. Let our base ballists stir themselves. We have plenty of good material for a crack nine.

Police News.

The police made a general raid on the houses of prostitution Mohday, and as a result of their efforts five frisky females languish in the stone edifice on the hill. The Water street brothel was first overhauled. This concern had but recently started in operations, but if the reports circulated in regard to the management were true, it was a loathsome den, and its closing out is timely. The proprietor, a man named Lawrence (alleged), made himself scarce when the officers arrived, but the other inmates were arrested and taken before Justice Smith, where they gave their names as Dolly Dale, Alice Brown and Minnie Wilson. The charges made against them were for selling liquor and keeping a bawdy house, and in default of bail the trio were committed for a hearing yesterday.

The police next visited a shanty on Cherry Alley, kept by a woman named Mary Coonfrey and her sister, who were arrested and taken into the presence of the Justice. They failed to satisfy that functionary why they should not be held for the charge of keeping a disorderly house, and being unable to procure bail were also committed.

The house presided over by one Minnie Gray next received a call, on the information given by the woman Coonfrey, who was greatly provoked at the turn of affairs in her case, and demanded that the officers make a clean sweep. The proprietor of the jail hill establishment, however, was more fortunate than the others in being able to promptly furnish bail for her appearance.

LATER.

Since writing the above we learn that Lawrence, who escaped from the officers on Water street, was overtaken at Milesburg and arrested. He was brought to this place Monday evening and jailed.

A Card of Thanks.

MR. EDITOR.—We desire, through your paper, to express our thanks to the young ladies and gentlemen of Milesburg, and others, for their generous and hearty kindness in assisting us to raise funds for the Presbyterian parsonage in Milesburg. It was very gratifying to witness the unanimity with which they worked (some of all churches), spending much time and labor. It was also gratifying to see how our people, of all denominations, patronized the movement, making it a financial success; the proceeds amounting to $43.16. This success was owing, in a great measure to the prudent management of some of our ladies and gentlemen. Our friend, Mr. Frank E. Bible, gave much valuable time and attention to it. We would also mention Mr. Geo. Potter Bible, the elocutionist, with thanks, who some time ago gave us two excellent entertainments, giving us one-half of the proceeds for the same purpose. All will please accept our thanks.

Respectfully,
W. O. WRIGHT.

—Our friend Beck, the barber, has given his clarionet a rest, and is now wrestling desperately with a cornet. One night last week, it is said, he shot off such an agonizing blast that every gas light in the block was extinguished, and Billy Jones hurried up onto the roof to see if the flag staff had been struck. This was an accident, though, and Beck says it may not happen again for six months.

MARRIED.

NOLL—THOMAS—At the Presbyterian Parsonage, Milesburg, Pa., March 30th, by the Rev. W. O. Wright, Mr. Emmanuel Noll and Miss Sarah C. Thomas, both of Milesburg.

PACKER—ROBB—On the 5th inst., at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. Geo. P. Hartzell, Mr. Ira M. Packer to Miss Mary E. Robb, both of Curtin Twp., Centre county.

The waiters on the occasion were Mr. Peter Robb and Miss Maggie Glossnea, Mr. John C Bechdel and Miss Lizzie Robb. Along with the congratulations of the assembled guests, quite a number of presents were received. In the evening the bride and groom were escorted to Howard, whence they took the train enroute to Pittsburgh. May theirs be a pleasant and prosperous journey through life.
